Doctoral-level, internationally published, and award-winning heritage professional with a specialization in European Prehistory and museum work. With a strong background as a trained editor and designer, I excel in translating and editing Dutch and English scientific texts, bringing an additional flair for graphic design to each project.

Driven and adaptable, I thrive on variety and enjoy managing a diverse portfolio of research and freelance projects for clients in the Netherlands and abroad. My experience spans securing grants, leading research initiatives, consulting on and creating exhibitions, designing books, running social media campaigns, and more.

I am deeply committed to promoting equality within archaeology, museums, and academia, and I actively work toward this goal. Through my blog and social media, I share my passion for archaeology, aiming to engage the public in the importance of our cultural heritage.
